Whizz kids of Mzansi is a new documentary series that looks at what talent is and how it unfolds in our children. What is this thirst to learn and understand what gifted children posses?

For years children have been measured by how they perform on an intellectual level or on how many marks they get in class. However, more and more research shows that this is a very limited way of measuring how smart and talented an individual child is.

The series will take viewers on a journey of wonderment and enchantment - one that will widen the lens of what genius really is, where it is found in developing children and how it evolves into adulthood. The series will explore the fantastic and crazy realm and will challenge the viewer to perceive and understand a child's mind on a new level.

The series will remind the viewers of the magic, mystery and the beauty of the human mind. Whizz Kids of Mzansi will unravel the magnificent mystery that is genius in all its conventional and peculiar facets through the eyes of the gifted children and will.

Episode 1 (Tonight)

We enter the incredible world of South Africa's gifted children and find out what it means to be gifted or genius? Four extraordinary kids dazzle our screens; Tshepang one of South Africa's youngest chess champions challenges master chess player Watu Kobese, Neo, an 11 year old violinist headlines her own concert, Ethan a 10 year old child prodigy from the USA astounds South Africa and Kialin a 10 year old profoundly gifted boy, who capable of reading an 800 page book in under 6 hours!

Dont miss Whizz Kids Of Mzansi every Tuesday at 9pm fo sho!